AMUSEMENTS.

Grand-Katie Rooney's Vaudeville.

There have been numerous bison manipulators seen with various shows here, but none of them can even approach the Glocks, who do a specialty with the Katie Rooney Company, which opened at the Grand yesterday. This couple, Charles and Annie Glocker, are adepts at juggling, twisting, and tossing the big sticks which form the most important part of a drum major's get-up. Their act is graceful and the best in its line ever attempted here. The performance of "The Greater New Yorkers," as Katie Rooney styles her company, is a good one. It abounds in bright, catchy music. There are a couple of burlesque songs, but as they are filled with specialties the performance is almost purely vaudeville one. Katie Rooney does an attractive turn, during which she imitates the late Pat Rooney, her father, with much skill. Her singing and dancing is quite worthy of the name she bears. The Carolee sisters, a number of songs and do a dance that makes their act above the average. Clarence Wilbur is a sweet and charming tenor, who into favor with the audiences yesterday at once. Mattie and Pat Rooney, Jr., also caught the houses with their dances, which they were compelled to repeat. Whitehead and Stewart are comedians, who yesterday evening, Edward Raymond did a ventriloquist specialty, introducing the usual figures. The Norwoods are a pair of good athletes in their triple horizontal bar and the Helston trio furnish any amount of fun in their comedy sketch called "A Lively Time with Pottery Buckers." The other features which help make the performance a brilliant one and the engagement at the Grand, which continues only to-day and to-morrow, is likely to attract crowded houses. "Darkest America" arrives Thursday for its return engagement. The company is a large one and its success at the Park last fall is well remembered.

The advance sale for John Drew's engagement at English's next Saturday matinee and night will open to-morrow morning at the Pembroke. "Rosemary" is his play and dainty Maud Adams appears to charming advantage as Dorothy. "Rosemary" tells the story of a middle-aged country squire who marries a young girl, again, masters a violent passion and in old age wanders, serenely, if sadly, through memories that have lost their lustre, and is interspersed with much merry dialogue and real pathos.

Empire—Twentieth Century Sports.

The Twentieth Century Sports Variety Company opened at the Empire yesterday, to remain three days. The performance opens and closes with burlesque of the savage grade. In the olden days, Maud Kennedy, who sings a number of "spicy" parodies, Palmer and Darrall, in sentimental ballads; James Ward, Irish punster, and Allen O'Brien, whose comic musical act seems to take as well as ever. The burlesque has been a success, and a lot of women than is usually shown in that sort of thing, and the costumes are neat and new. It is the intention for the members of the Indianapolis and Cleveland ball teams to graciously grace the occasion by exhibiting themselves in the box. The theater will be dark after to-morrow until Saturday night, when the athletic tournament will be "pulled off."

The fact has just been announced, Miss Traubman, after the wedding, went to Chicago and St. Louis with the Abbey, School & Company, and will stay with the company in Boston last week.

CHINA DECORATORS' DISPLAY.

An Unusually Good Exhibit Shown This Year.

The annual display made by the China decorators opened yesterday at H. Lieber's on South Meridian street. The quantity and the quality of the work exceeds that of other years. A notable feature is the number of pieces which were painted under the direction of Mr. Aulick, of Cincinnati, who came here for several days each week during the winter. Mrs. J. H. Orndorff shows a varied collection of pieces, a wine tankard, several plates and some Easter novelties being especially good. Mrs. Lewis D. Stubbs, of Richmond, who is to read the paper to-morrow before the Ceramic Club, has some fine pieces of work, a number of sketches of monks being prominent. Mrs. Albert Henly excels in flower designs, and has a vase and a loving cup that are very good. Miss Cora Palmer's work is distinctly original and artistic. One of the finest pieces is a quaint shaped vase with a willow leaf design that is exquisite in coloring. She also shows a vase and several pieces that she has given an underglaze effect that is particularly beautiful. Mrs. C. J. Buchanan has some large pieces, a lamp, a jardiniere and pedestal, two wine stands, with plates, tea sets and other articles, making a pretentious collection. The enamel work is unusually fine. Mrs. M. B. Thrasher and Miss M. Johnson, of Shelbyville, have for their best work a table top belonging to the former and a tray by the latter that are noticeably good. Mrs. Pauley is represented by a butterfly-shaped tray in grape design. Mrs. William H. Welch has a punch bowl in gold and grape decoration and a tray in small rose design. Mrs. D. W. Coffin, another of the leading artists in china, has a number of pieces of a Dresden dinner set that are unique. Two trays with figure decoration are notable. Mrs. J. J. Garver has a rose jar with the figure of spring with outstretched arms lifted to the blossoming tree. Mrs. Garver also has several other pieces. Miss Katherine Venn shows a chocolate set with poppy decoration, which is her best effort. Mrs. J. G. Kende has a tea set with a willow rose design that is the most notable in her collection. Miss Beattie M. Parry has a variety of flower pieces that show talent. Mrs. Francis E. Herron also has some flower decoration that is good. Mrs. J. B. Roberts shows plates and cups in conventional design, well executed. Mrs. C. O'Haver has some original work. Mrs. E. H. Moyer has a tray and a tantan, and are her best articles. Miss Wetherald and Mrs. H. M. Loger, of Connersville, attract attention with their conventional and figure designs. Miss Lillie Harrington, of Indianapolis, has a tea set painted in a figure with flower pieces and Mrs. Charles E. Burger has a tea set painted in an old-fashioned design. Miss Schramm has a rose tray and a grape tray and Mrs. Henrietta Van Horn a nasturtium tray that are interesting. Miss Jessie B. Cox, of Fort, has a set of punch bowl and cups artistically painted, and her takard with the poppy design is admirable. Her monogrammed best is the only one in the entire exhibit. Mrs. William C. McCurdy and Miss Dickson are represented by some good work. Mrs. Walter S. Day has a tray with a collection of well-executed work. Miss Jessie Daggett has a berry set, refreshing in its originality. The decoration is in emerald and gold, with a conventional design and just a touch of red to give it character. As the place of work as there is in the collection is the punch bowl and cups decorated by Mrs. Charles Buchanan. Small fruits are the design and there is a finish and delicacy about the whole that is artistic. Mrs. Allen Ross Hadley has been turning her attention to conventional designs and she shows several plates in this style. She also has a jardiniere and a vase in rose design. In addition Mrs. Hadley has several water color designs for plates. Miss May L. Reynolds has the best work. Her panel of Psyche is beautiful, and the several heads share in the excellence of all that she does. Mrs. B. McNutt, of Terre Haute, a pupil of Miss Reynolds, also has some fine work. Mrs. Olin White has a tray, with a willow design. Mrs. B. L. Booth has several plates in conventional design and Miss Beattie Venn some flower and fruit designs. Mrs. W. T. Fugate's display attracts for its especially good, and her enamel and gold work quite unlike other pieces. In addition to the china, work two water colors by Miss Helen M. Goodwin, of New York, are admired. One is a design of peonies and the other of the pieces of old china. The exhibit will continue open the remainder of the week.

ANOTHER CLOSE GAME

HOOSIERS KNOCKED RHINES OUT OF THE BOX IN THE FIFTH.

And Would Have Defeated the Reds but for Errors—Good Work by Flynn—Hutchinson Case Decided.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

CINCINNATI, April 12.—Bad fielding lost the game for the Indianapolis club to-day. Rhines, the crack pitcher of the Reds, was in the box the first five innings, and was touched up for eight hits by the Hoosiers. "Red" Ehret was substituted in the sixth, but the Hoosiers were unable to do anything with him. Goar, Wolters and Phillips pitched for Indianapolis. Goar was hit rather hard in the first inning, but the Reds were unable to do much thereafter. Gray played third base for the Hoosiers and made two fine running catches. Flynn was substituted for McCarthy, who was injured his leg during practice, and remained on the bench during the game. Wood catching the nine innings.

Indianapolis scored one in the first inning and Cincinnati three, the latter on errors. The "Reds" got another in the second. In the third McPhee hit to right, Hogreiver threw wide to Motz and McPhee went to third. Vaughn's hit scored him and the latter also made the circuit. Indianapolis added one more to its score in the fourth, and in the fifth the Hoosiers had a batting streak and tied the score.

Wolters went out on a fly to Irwin. Hogreiver went to first on ball. McFarland and Flynn singled, scoring Hogreiver. Motz also singled out a beauty, sending in two runs, but was himself nailed at second by a fine throw, while trying to stretch his single into a double. Stewart struck out and ended the inning, which looked rather serious for the Reds.

Hogreiver succeeded in going to first base on balls three times out of five times at bat and in the field. He attracted much attention and Ewing says Indianapolis has League material in the ex-Cot. Stewart's record was also good. If the Hoosiers had played the ball they were capable of right at the start the Reds would have lost to a certainty, for Watson's men played strong. The weather was cold and the attendance small. Score:

CLEVELAND HERE TO-DAY.

Return of the Hoosiers from Their Cincinnati Work.

Manager Watkins has no reason to feel at all ashamed of the showing his team made at Cincinnati. To give the Reds a bad scare in both games and lose them by such a narrow margin was quite as much as any reasonable person could expect. With all their practice in New Orleans Ewing men had their hands full defeating the Indianapolis team, which has had scarcely any practice. Rhines, who was batted out of the box yesterday, was always easy for Indianapolis. In the old days when he pitched for Grand Rapids the fans here would have cheered him to-day or to-morrow. The Indians were slated for the box. The Indianapolis players, however, did not let him get away. They were in a position to win and they did win. They were in a position to win and they did win. They were in a position to win and they did win.

ST. LOUIS GETS HUTCHISON.

Decision of the National Board of Arbitration Against Minneapolis.

Hart, Chicago; A. H. Soden, Boston; C. H. Byrne, Brooklyn; John T. Brush, Cincinnati; and F. H. Robinson, Cleveland. ## Best Value Obtainable

Our great factories, second to none in the world, have not sprung into existence by magic. The reason for their existence lies in the reputation which our product has obtained throughout the world, and which is and will be maintained regardless of cost. We are here to stay—to grow larger and stronger—to keep pace with the growth and strength of our city—to contribute our share to its general prosperity. That our efforts to build good bicycles and deal fairly are appreciated at home, is evidenced by the number of Waverleys on the streets of Indianapolis to-day. 1897 improvements and prices should double their number.

Taggart said that he fully favored the idea, but doubted the wisdom of saying to citizens of the city, and taxpayers, to that they must join a union or they cannot obtain employment of the city. He also said that he was not in favor of the union of home labor by the city contractors.

The report of the grievance committee, recommending a boycott on the Home Brewery product, was made to the union for the first time. This report has been printed before, having been considered by the local union at once. Several members spoke against establishing the boycott and J. F. White said he wanted to go on record as opposing it. The report was adopted by a vote of 22 to 14.

The following new delegates were admitted to the Central Union: James Brooks, metal polishers; Frank Werner, brewers, and E. F. Barry, Typographical Union, No. 1.

J. C. Perry's Barn Burned.

The two-story brick barn belonging to J. C. Perry in the rear of his residence, 667 North Delaware street, was damaged to the extent of $300 by fire yesterday morning. The origin of the fire is unknown.

An archery contest at the city department had a run to the annexed territory known as West Indianapolis. The house at 131 North Delaware street, owned by N. H. Payne and occupied by James Cooley, was slightly damaged. An overheated stove caused the fire to catch here. The loss was about $25.

Still Indorse Grof.

At its meeting last night the Central Labor Union again took up the question of the appointment of a factory inspector and adopted a long resolution urging Governor Mount and I hope Governor E. G. Crot to position. The resolution recalls the appointment of a bookkeeper to this position in Illinois which, it says, proved to be a good appointment. Missouri with a printer as factory inspector is also cited.

Mayor Taggart made a play for popularity with the union men and received a vote of thanks. The union asked, in letter, that Mayor Taggart take steps to unionize the city employees. In answer Mr.
